act of Congress of February 28, 1901. known as the police reorganization bill, provides, among other things, that the police force shall thereafter consist of one major and superintendent, one captain and assistant superintendent and such number of captains, lieutenants, sergeants, privates mh29-28d of classes two and one, desk sergeants and others as Congress may from time to time provide. Several days ago Maj. Sylvester requested the District Commissioners to have their attorney advise him as to the Drop a postal card to secure a following questions: Should the superintendent of police recommend the present captain of por-lice to be made captain and assistant superintendent, and should his title here-after be such and be so carried on the pay rolls of the department? And should the three lieutenant inspectors be likewise recommended and carried as captains, and should the station keepers of the department be likewise recommended and carried as desk sergeants? as desk sergeants?

The legal adviser of the Commissioners

The legal adviser of the Commissioners has answered these questions in the negative. While it appears, he explains, that Congress in a report upon the subject approved these changes, yet it failed to enact effective legislation thereon, omitting to make the necessary changes in the act providing funds for the maintenance of the District during the coming fiscal year. Therefore, until Congress specifically otherwise authorizes, the police officials must bear their existing titles.
